BOATING.—One day last week, while the iron-clad Monitor was lying in our harbor, opposite Long Wharf, we noticed among the numerous small craft hovering about her one of those long narrow single scull wherries with which the Charles river boating men are so familiar. Appearing like a faint line barely raised above the water, and bulging up in the center like the turret, the man clad into a figure that sat motionless gazing upon the huge iron monster, to which the entire affair of man and wherry in the distance, bore a most comical resemblance. The frail wherry was compared to the iron clad, a water fly to an alligator, her thin covering of wood and canvas is [illegible] to the hide of some monster of the ante[illegible] who existed before the flood; but a coat of black paint would have made them wonderfully alike in appearance at least and seen alternately through the opposite ends of a large glass, one might have been taken almost for a copy of the other.

Slight and frail as these light wherries appear they will stand with proper management quite heavy seas and rough weather. It was in one of these wherries that the vegetarian, Martin, started along the Atlantic coast from Boston to New York, riding the waves and angry breakers without fear. The late Sidney Williard wrote of a "Night in a wherry," the Isles of Shoals and Rye Beach, whence he had rowed in a wherry from Boston, apparently troubling himself about nothing but keeping the head of his boat to the sea, and laughed complacently at the wide open eyes that stared down upon him from the sides of a fishing schooner that came fearfully close to his little streak of a craft, just as he was preparing for a comfortable nap. Last year two adventurous youths from Cambridge rowed from Boston to Bangor, and startled the natives along the coast of Maine as Columbus did the Indians of the New world. And last week two young men rowed from this city to Gloucester in a shell boat, in six hours, and there is sometimes pretty rough water over that course.

Professional oarsmen generally stipulate for smooth water when they are making arrangements for a race, and Admiral Farragut, in a bluff way, at our last regatta, expressed his contempt for boats that could only go on an unruffled surface and gave it as his opinion that it was money thrown away to build such boats; but it has been shown that they can be made to go, and very well too, in rough water. Arctic travelers tell of the calak, a boat weighing about fifty pounds, swift and strong, in which the Esquimaux defies the storm, and does not hesitate to give battle to the polar bear and other monsters of the northern seas; and a later traveler describes the Esquimaux boatman as turning somersets in the water, boat and man together, and coming right side up again, with the most perfect unconcern, so complete was his management of the boat. All this does not prove that a lapstreak or a shell wherry is as well adapted to ocean service as a Cunard steamer, nor would we recommend young amateurs to take long voyages in them, as they have not much capacity for storage, and provisions might give out, and there are no state-rooms when you wish to "retire," no broad quarter deck to lounge about on and smoke your postprandial pipe; in short no luxuries whatever, except in haling the fresh air, and the grateful expansion of the chest and growth of muscle that comes to you under the favoring influence of one of the most innocent and health giving of out-door exercises.—Boston Gazette

THE DANGEROUS ELEMENT.—The News thinks "the negro element of the South is dangerous to the country at large." In what respect?

Does "the element" eat too many Government rations? In Knoxville, 369 eat, but only two belong to "the [illegible]!"

Is "the element" lazy? Every writer from the South tells us that the bar-room loafers, the corner loungers, the petty gamblers are white men. The negro works.

Does "the element" cost too much? The rate of wages in the South is from five to seven dollars a month. The labor is severe and harsh. It could not be purchased here for five times the money.

Is "the element" vicious? We hear stories of oppression and injustice every day, assaults, murders, deceptions, but in all cases the white man is the oppressor; "the element" is calm, uncomplaining, docile.

"The element is dangerous to the country pretty much as the lamb is to the wolf. Whether he drinks up the stream or down the stream, or does not drink at all, the wolf will certainly be disturbed.

As there is much misapprehension afloat with regard to the consumption of Government rations by "contrabands" and others, we always gladly welcome any one who adduces naked facts elucidating the subject. Here is an item.

A correspondent of the Times in East Tennessee gives the following official returns of persons receiving Government rations at Chattanooga:

Whites	304	"Niggers"	4

Superior race ahead by 300.

Another correspondent of the same paper says, Col. S. Thomas, Superintendent for Freedmen for Mississippi, has sent to Washington a report, dated August 15, which thus sums up the business in that State, where the blacks are a decided majority of the entire population, while the whites own all the property:

"The amount of rations issued to whites is about the same as issued to freedmen. Not less than 5,000 people are cutting wood for steamers on the Mississippi river, and more people are engaged in this business than ever; but they support themselves. The total number of freedmen in the State is estimated at 346,000, of whom only 2,000 are receiving assistance from the Government."

This is less than one colored beneficiary for every black Mississippian to-day serving in the armies of the Union. How would the white Mississippians abide that touchstone?—N. Y. Tribune

NOISY LODGING.—A recent explorer in the Inyo mountains, beyond the Owens River country, describes his experience on the hights:

"The next day we made across the valley into these interesting mountains whose tops are reached only after a climb of two days. Getting into them and reaching an elevation of 10,000 feet we 'turned in' for the night. All went along well enough, as we were very comfortable and sleeping soundly, until midnight, when we were awakened by a most terrific peal of thunder. At first it seemed that all above was tumbling into the valley. The fierce flashes of lightning illuminated all about us at frequent intervals. Flash after flash, and peal after peal, followed rapidly, the echoes of which almost equalled the first clap. It seemed as though old Vulcan had forgotten some of his work, and had started in to forging bolts with all his might. I had never before witnessed on this coast such a scene of thunder and lightning. To add to the terrors of the scene, it rained copiously part of the time, and altogether it was very uncomfortable. All's well that ends well however. In a few hours all was quiet again, even to ourselves, though we were rather damp. We were surprised in going down into the valley and speaking about the storm to learn that the people there knew nothing of it, although the thunder seemed to us loud enough to be heard at a political meeting in San Francisco. A few days after this I was 13,000 feet high, with a rain storm below and the sun shining above me."

THE UNCHANGEABLE LAND.—Things do not change in the East. As Abraham pitched his tent in Bethel, so does an Arab sheikh now set up his camp; as David built his palace on Mount Zion, so would a Turkish pasha now arrange his [illegible]; in every street may be seen the hairy cloth [illegible] I saw squatting on the ground, devouring a mess of lentils like that for which the rough hunter sold his birthright; along every road plod the sons of Rechab, whose fathers, one thousand years ago, bound themselves and heirs to drink no wine, plant no tree, enter within no door, and their children have kept the oath; at every khan young men sit round the [illegible] of parched corn, dipping their morsel into the dish. The plow is still as [illegible] and the soil is still trodden into the ground by [illegible] and kine; olives are shaken from the [illegible] as recorded by Isaiah, and the grafting of trees is unchanged since the days of Saul. The [illegible] house is still as formerly [illegible] a tent or tent [illegible] a temple was a marble tent. What is seen now in Bethany may be taken as the exact likeness of the house of Lazarus, where Mary listened and Martha toiled, or as the house of Simon the leper where the precious box of ointment was [illegible], and whence Judas set out to betray his Master.—Dickens' All the Year Round.

The Idaho Statesman makes a vicious attack on the Democracy. It advocates a law making highway robbery punishable with death.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

FRIDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 24 1865

Proclamation of Thanksgiving

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has issued a Proclamation of Thanksgiving as follows, to wit:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty God during the year which is now coming to an end to relieve our beloved country from the fearful scourge of civil war and to permit us to secure the blessings of peace, unity and harmony, with a great enlargement of civil liberty; and whereas our Heavenly Father has also during the year graciously averted from us the calamities of foreign war, pestilence and famine, while our granaries are full of the fruits of an abundant season; and whereas righteousness exalteth a nation, while sin is a reproach to any people; now therefore, I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby recommend to the people thereof that they set apart and observe the First Thursday of December next as a day of National Thanksgiving to the Creator of the Universe, for these deliverances and blessings. And I do further recommend that, on that occasion, the whole people make confession of our national sins against His infinite goodness, and with one heart and one mind implore the Divine guidance in the ways of national virtue and holiness.

AND, WHEREAS, the people of Oregon have abundant reason to be thankful to Almighty God for His unnumbered blessings:

Therefore, I, Addison C. Gibbs, Governor of Oregon, recommend that all the people of the State observe the 7th day of December next in the manner designated by the President.

{L.S.} In testimony whereof I hereunto set my hand and cause the Seal of the State of Oregon to be attached this 21st day of November, 1865.
By the Governor, ADDISON C. GIBBS.
SAMUEL E. MAY, Secretary of State.

National Finances—Secretary M'Culloch's Views

During the progress of our war the political economists of England spoke with the utmost derision of the system of finance which we were compelled to adopt and predicted its inevitable and speedy failure. In any other country than our own the system could not have been sustained. No other government possessed credit enough to have carried it through so trying an ordeal. It is here that the English were mistaken. Under our system of finance and in the midst of a great struggle, their government would have gone down. They judged us by their own rules, they tried our country by their own measure, and so fell into error. The financial ability of our able statesmen they also misjudged. Because some of our Congressmen in their simple earnestness to serve their country, undertook to fix the selling price of gold by legislative enactment, the English financiers thought all Americans were mad, or that the best and wisest among us did not understand the elementary principles of political economy. How far this judgment was wrong is observable when we come to acquaint ourselves with the opinions of those of our statesmen who are most learned in matters of finance, and who, like our present Secretary of the Treasury, rest their views on principles which science can commend and which experience has approved.

Some of the opinions of Secretary M'Culloch, expressed in a speech delivered by him not long since at Fort Wayne, have been published. The speech is valuable as showing the views of a man of acknowledged financial ability, and remarkable as being an exposition of a set of ideas different from those entertained by some of the theorists of our country. The Secretary pointedly and emphatically says that he does not regard our present financial system as sound. He would not do away with a paper currency entirely, but he would withdraw enough of this species of money from circulation to enable the balance to be convertible into coin. Says he: "I favor a well secured convertible paper currency. The present inconvertible currency of the United States was a necessity of war; but now the war has ceased the currency should be brought up to a specific standard, and I see no way of doing it but by withdrawing a portion of it from circulation." Here we are shown that it will be impossible, except by reducing its volume, to make our paper money equal to gold. Credit must be strengthened by making it possible to change paper at once into coin. When this is done we shall not, as now, have a depreciated paper currency.

Again the Secretary says: "By the common consent of nations, gold and silver are the only true measures of value." This is something different from the crude opinions of those who think paper may be made to have any value which a legislative body chooses to name. Paper means credit. It cannot be made to possess an intrinsic value. It represents gold and silver, and rises to a par value or depreciates just in proportion to the facility with which it may be changed into silver and gold.

The Secretary looks upon our irredeemable currency "as an evil which circumstances may for a time render necessary, but which is never to be sustained as a policy." Our financial system is to be corrected. "We are measuring values by a false standard," that is, by another standard than silver and gold. We may not soon be able to return to specie payments, or what "is the same thing, to the use of a convertible currency, but until we can do so business will not be founded on a sure and steady basis." Instead of resolving that paper money ought to be equal to gold, some of our philosophers should study the principles expounded by the Secretary of the Treasury, and thus ascertain the real cause of the depreciation of our currency at the present time.

MINERALS IN COLUMBIA COUNTY.—The coal beds which we spoke of some weeks ago as having been discovered near St. Helens have been opened to some extent, proving the coal to be of excellent quality. So far, three veins have been opened, showing deposits of coal several feet in depth. The walls of these coal measures are of aqueous rock profusely interspersed with sea shells. A considerable quantity of coal has already been mined. The proprietors at present are engaged in sinking a shaft in the hill some distance above the point where the "croppings" were first discovered, in order to ascertain at what depth the veins lie below the surface. The coal beds are situated six miles west of St. Helens and are easily reached by an excellent road. These deposits are much more extensive and valuable than any others yet found in this portion of the State. They will shortly supply all points on these rivers with an abundance of coal for every purpose for which it may be needed. Some time ago, before the proprietors became aware of the extent of their discovery, they were offered ten thousand dollars for it. The offer was declined.

Iron ore in large quantities is also found about two miles from St. Helens. The ore is said to be of a remarkably good quality. An excellent water power is contiguous to it. The time will come ere long when speaking of our wealth, it will be necessary to take the minerals of Columbia county into the account.

"A COPPERHEAD HOLE."—New York city has furnished 116,000 men for the war, besides 2?,000 three months men, at a cost for bounties of $9,870,327. The total military expenditures of the city were over seventeen millions and a half, and the number of men furnished to the war was almost as large as the entire number furnished by New England.

We find the above in the Review. We give it as a specimen of the manner in which the Copperheads habitually revile New England. Massachusetts alone sent 153,706 men to the war, and the remainder of the New England States sent their full proportion. And when a draft was ordered, they did not raise riots, burn orphan asylums, hang negroes and give themselves up to stealing and plunder generally, as the Constitutional "Democracy" of New York did on a like occasion.

In Ceylon the marriage ceremony is performed by tying the couple together by the thumbs. In this country they are more frequently put together by the ears.

OUR DAILY MAIL.—From information which has come into our possession from an entirely reliable source we can state that it is the settled purpose of high officials connected with the Post Office Department to reduce our mail service after next June, if the thing can be done. Col. Markland, the newly appointed Postal Agent for the Pacific States has, it is said, formed an idea that Oregon does not need a daily mail from California, and that a weekly, or at most, a semi-weekly service is all we ought to have. It is understood that he will report this view of the case to the Department and insist on the substitution of a weekly for the present daily mail. He is said to be a gentleman of very decided opinions, not easily moved from a position which he has taken. That he will not favor the continuance of the daily mail after the expiration of the present contract, we are quite convinced. Certainly he will not be likely to do so unless the idea can be impressed upon him that we need and deserve for the future the same mail service we have had for the last five years. Accordingly the press of Oregon ought to take the matter in hand and by a suitable representation of facts, show the Agent the propriety and necessity of continuing the daily service as well as the inconvenience that would result to the people and the injustice that would be shown by the Government to a great and loyal community were the daily mail to be withdrawn.

This mail serves northern California, the whole of Oregon, the Territory of Washington and a large part of Idaho and Montana. The number of inhabitants who rely entirely on receiving the mails by this daily line, is not less than three hundred thousand. This population is rapidly growing larger. The country is equal in natural resources to any part of the United States. It has but just fairly begun to surmount the difficulties which are to be encountered in every new country. Having passed through the most trying period in its history its growth hereafter will be more rapid. We are becoming more settled than formerly, and our enterprises are approaching a condition of healthy permanence. The people here should receive—deserve to receive support and encouragement from the Government, instead of being treated with indifference and neglect. Instead of withdrawing her benefices from Oregon it is the duty of the Government at least to continue them as they are, and not resolve to heap favors on disloyal and unworthy communities elsewhere, by economising and retrenching at our expense.

There is not, we venture to say, in all the United States a community so large, so populous, so wealthy and so loyal as the one we are speaking of, which is compelled to depend merely on a weekly mail. As regards the cost of the daily service it is not disproportionate to the sums paid by the government for other contracts of a similar kind. From Salt Lake to Walla Walla mails are carried at a greater expense to the Government than is the cost of the service from Lincoln, California, to Portland. A mail over those deserts may be very well, but that route cannot compare in importance with this. There is soon to be an ocean mail service between San Francisco and China at a cost of one million dollars per annum. This will do much for commerce, but on any other consideration it would be ridiculous to pay so large a sum merely for that service. If our Government desires this part of our national domain to increase in prosperity and grow in greatness—if it wants its several members to gain strength and power so that it may receive their efficient support—it will not withdraw from us and them its assistance, but will aid in erecting each State into a powerful community, knowing that while it assists them in their development, it is itself, through them, growing in strength and stability.

In the midst of its lamentations over the death of Wirz the Confederate Democrat takes comfort from the supposed fact that the "triumph of the Abolitionists in the Atlantic States affords a certain indication that the dissolution of that party is at hand!" He who is so constituted as thus to derive consolation and hope from the most cruel adversity, has that quality of mind that would almost enable him > —"To cloy the edge of appetite

> With bare imagination of a feast,
> Or wallow naked in December snow
> By thinking on fantastic summer's heat."

While hope remains so buoyant, the Democrat will survive. But we feel sure that, maugre the "indications of its dissolution," which late victories afford, the Union party will be able to live awhile too.

The Statesman is grievously exercised because, as it says, we do not support the President. Union men, not Copperheads, are qualified to decide whether we support the President or not. But though we sustain his Administration in all essentials, we hope never to be such slaves as to say in the language of the Statesman: "We don't differ from the President in anything that we know of." This is a species of servility to which none would descend except those mean spirits who live by the patronage of those they fawn upon.

A radical Union man remarked to us the other day that the Statesman was now repeating one of its old tricks again. Before it passed out of the hands of its last proprietor it pretended to be a Union paper, though all the while an insufferable Copperhead sheet. It now also pretends to be for the Union and the Union party, but is drifting palpably towards Copperheadism after its old fashion. Hereabouts it is strongly suspected that the same individual who managed it before, dictates its course now.

If the whites will just behave themselves they can be treated just as genteelly as though they were negroes.—Copperhead paper.

Exactly. In the administration of justice there is to be no difference in the treatment of the whites and blacks. At least so say President Johnson and the Governors of Mississippi, Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia.

The Statesman, if we mistake not, thinks that the national debt adds three thousand millions to the cash capital of the country.—Oregonian.

You are not mistaken.—Statesman.

We are not surprised that a person who stoutly maintains that a promise to pay money is better than the cash in hand, should also be brought to think that one's wealth is augmented by the debts he owes. Debtors generally would like to persuade creditors of the truth of both these theories.

The Watchman has the following:

"Mr Davidson, one of the projectors of the scheme for the navigation of Pend d'Oreille Lake by steam, went up above on the 2d instant, to superintend the land transportation of the machinery of the boat to be built for that purpose. The contract for the building of the hull and doing the joiner's work is let, and the mechanics, sawyers and laborers are to go above at once by the quickest conveyance. The boat will be finished by the first of March."

HOW KIND! General Schouler received at his office a paper lately picked up in the State House at Raleigh, N. C., purporting to be a bill introduced into the Legislature of that State while in rebellion. The bill is entitled an act "to permit persons of African descent to choose their own masters and become slaves." The bill appears to have been referred to a committee, was reported upon, read twice and finally laid upon the table.

General Meagher, after struggling through a miserable Carolina swamp for several days, asked a long, lank butternut dyed native boy how far it was to terra firma. "I hain't heern o' no such place about yer," was the cheering reply.

West Virginia furnished to the armies of the United States 31,834 men. This however does not include the men who were in the service of the State and who rendered material service to the Government by protecting the border, and suppressing the operations of guerrillas.

STRENGTH OF MATERIALS.—It is a remarkable fact that one of the most ductile metals in nature, iron, is the strongest of all known substances made. Made into the best steel, a rod one-fourth of an inch in diameter will sustain 6,000 pounds before breaking; soft steel [illegible] pounds, iron wire 6,000 pounds, [illegible] poor to inferior bar iron 2,000 pounds, cast iron 1,000 to 3,000 pounds, copper wire [illegible] pounds, silver, 2,000 gold [illegible] tin [illegible] pounds, cast zinc 160 pounds, [illegible] pounds, cast lead 50 pounds, milled lead [illegible].

Of wood [illegible] pounds [illegible] birch [illegible] white [illegible] pounds, chestnut and soft maple 600 pounds, poplar 400 pounds. [illegible] heavy weight for a minute or two will break with two-thirds of the [illegible] time.

A rod of iron is about ten times as strong as a hemp cord.

A rope an inch in diameter will bear [illegible], but in practice it is not safe to subject it to a strain of more than about one ton. Half an inch in diameter the strength will be one quarter as much; a quarter of an inch, one sixteenth; and so on.

A NEW OYSTER BED DISCOVERED.—A great discovery has been made in Long Island Sound, nearly opposite Sheppard Point, in Connecticut. The discoverer kept his secret for a week, going nightly for the precious bivalves, and bringing them in ashore, but indulging too much in liquor, he told the story of his good luck, and thus spoiled his chance of realizing a fortune. The next day all the oystermen and many other persons of the village, anxious to make their fortunes going, went out to the new fishing ground and commenced operations. In a day or two the news spread along the coast, and now for the past few days, hundreds of sloops have been engaged in working a thousand dredges and hauling up thousands of bushels of the finest bivalves. This bed is located two or three miles from the shore, and is nearly opposite Sheppard Point in the town of Stamford, Connecticut. It is reported to exceed in extent the bed which was discovered opposite Norwalk in 1860. The oysters are of most excellent quality, most of them of the proper age and growth necessary to make them fit for immediate use. The excitement growing out of the discovery is very great among the people who live in the villages along the coast. Many people are leaving their regular occupations to devote their labor to gathering the shell fish, and scarcely anything else is talked about but the new oyster bed.

SEMMES.—A correspondent of the Springfield (Massachusetts) Republican, who is traveling in the South, lately saw I'm the Captain save me first Semmes, and says of him:

"Semmes, whom loyal men call 'pirate' and rebels call 'Admiral,' was on board, and I studied him closely to discover that noble chivalrous bearing which have been ascribed to him by those who used to be thrilled with rapture at his brave and unarmed attacks upon unarmed whalers and merchantmen. I think this bearing must have entirely left him when the Kearsarge sunk him on the Alabama. To me he looked like a repentant sinner who had sinned a long time before the work of repentance began. On the whole he is a cheap, rheumy looking man of about fifty five years, the only expressive looking feature about him being his nose, which must have cost a great deal of money to bring it to its present bright ruby color. He neither courted nor avoided observation, was traveling alone, and had little conversation with any one."

HOW AN OLD MAN GOT A YOUNG WIFE.—A rich old widower in Canada is said to have practiced a very artful scheme to gain the hand of the belle of a village. He got an old gypsy to tell the young lady's fortune in words which he dictated as follows: "My dear young lady, your star will soon be hid for a short time by a very dark cloud, but when it reappears it will continue to shine with uninterrupted splendor for the rest of your days. Before one week a wealthy old widower, wearing a suit of black and a fine castor hat, will pay you a visit and request your hand in marriage. You will accept his offer, become his wife, and be left a widow, in the possession of all his property before the close of this year. Your next husband will be a young man of whom you think most at present." Three days after, the old gentleman, dressed in the manner described by the gipsy, presented himself to the young lady, and the marriage followed.

In Montana where Uncle Sam's children have met to build an empire, those coming from the East are called "tender foot," coming from the West, they are called "yonder siders"; those [illegible] the name furnished as a distinguishing mark for each other. They are vastly amused at each others "lingo." Here is a specimen from a "tenderfoot," who had been out on a prospecting tour. He says "he dug a test pit, about an ax handle or an ax handle and a half deep, and found pay grit, about half an ax handle deep above the bed stone and thinks there is incline enough to run water troughs." A California saddle, full rigged, beats a "tender foot." Tapaderos he calls "toe tenders," "machiers," "saddle scabbard," cantinas, "handy bags." An inquisitive old lady inquired of a dealer "what kind of soil growed the wheat to make self rising flour." Dealer, who was a "yonder sider," answered her, "on alkali flats."

A white slave once came into General Logan's lines. His name was James Fellonch, of French descent by his father. His grandmother was an Indian girl, and was reared by a Mr Torrens, by whom she had a daughter, who was sold to a Mr Western of Charleston, who had a daughter by her. The latter was the mother of this slave, and kept in service by her half sister, a Mrs Smith, who afterwards sold both mother and children to heartless traders, who trafficked them over the country. This man was about forty years of age, slightly built, long sandy hair and whiskers, and evidently without a particle of African blood in his veins. Yet he was the bondsman of his kinsman.

ROMANTIC.—Ten years ago a young mulatto ran away from the plantation of Mr Charles Ambrose, a sugar lord at Bayou Fourche, La., stealing himself—a piece of property worth a thousand dollars. In the north he amassed a fortune worth a quarter of a million. A few days ago he went back to his old home, traveling in open daylight, with as little fear of bloodhounds and fugitive slave laws as if he were a white man, found his aged father and mother among the freed folks, and settled them comfortably, and presented a cottage and a piece of land to his widowed mistress, whose family had been beggared by the war.

The father of Mrs Siddons had always forbidden her to marry an actor, and of course she chose a member of the old gentleman's company, whom she secretly wedded. When Roger Kemble heard of it he was furious.

"Have I not," he exclaimed, "dared you to marry a player?"

The lady replied with downcast eyes that she had not disobeyed.

"What, madam? have you not allied yourself to about the worst performer in my company?"

"Exactly so," murmured the timid bride, "nobody can call him an actor."

A troublesome bear was shot at North Ellsworth, Maine, the other day, with a gun that was surrendered by the French to the British at Louisburgh, Nova Scotia, in 1755. It was used in the battles of Concord, Lexington and Bunker Hill, also at the siege of Castine, and in the war of 1812 with Great Britain. Its history is traced for 110 years.

At a sale of unclaimed articles at Norfolk, Virginia, last week, was a very heavy box addressed to "Dr Wood, Army of the James." It was knocked down for fifty one dollars. It contained New York clothing documents, and the purchaser has property enough to last a life time.

The dust that collects in bark mills, liberally applied, is recommended by the Maine Farmer to stop bleeding, even when an artery is cut. Applied more sparingly it is said to prevent chafing, to which many are subject in hot weather.

Upon examining the boiler of the [illegible], an engineer remarked that portions of the iron was as thin as cassimere. When his statement found its way into print the boiler had got to be as thin as gossamer.

The Madison Indiana Courier says it has heard young ladies singing, "Who will care for mother now?" while their old mothers were wearing themselves out in the kitchen over the family washing.

The State Treasurer gives notice that there is plenty of money in the State treasury to pay all outstanding warrants, and probably enough to pay the special session of the Legislature.

A large new foundry and machine shops are in process of construction at Salem by Messrs. Drake & Moore. Machinery has been purchased in the East and is now on the way for the establishment.

A cake of gold worth $26,000 (weighing 1,300 ounces) was recently on exhibition in the window of a banker at Melbourne. What a nice bridal cake that would be!

[illegible] Gold.—Messrs. Ladd & Tilton have [illegible] had on exhibition [illegible] of gold from the mines of Montana at the [illegible] house in this city. A written description of the [illegible] by Messrs. Mason & Wylie [illegible] as follows: Specimen $11 [illegible], forty miles east [illegible] specimen $31 [illegible] in Montana gulch [illegible] was rocked out by Mr. Hally [illegible]. In cutting a drain to this gulch [illegible] bed rock yielded $15 [illegible] is the first gulch discovered on the west side of [illegible]. Claims [illegible] $20 [illegible] day. The specimen $18 [illegible] gulch, which is still being largely [illegible] is daily taken out [illegible] of ten hours per day. The specimen $15.30 [illegible] of gold in Jefferson [illegible] ten miles west of [illegible] coarse, yield from $500 to $700 to the share [illegible] working per day. Messrs. Mason & Wylie could have given many other specimens from [illegible] localities, and were of the opinion that [illegible] —you would be hard [illegible] prospected. This was in August last [illegible] very many new discoveries have been [illegible] much larger nuggets found. We recently [illegible] found near Helena [illegible] weighing 14½ pounds from Deadwood gulch [illegible] what is termed Snowshoe gulch. The [illegible] of Wood gulch were dry and did [illegible] water. Recently a few days ago Mason & Wylie had 100 ounces of Blackfoot dust [illegible] and a fineness of 897 and the aggregate worth [illegible] was $1,886.21.

[illegible] Off.—We understand that Col. George B. Curry has been mustered out of the volunteer service of the United States. Lt. Col. Drake takes command of the Oregon Infantry and is making officer taken [illegible] of the Department of Columbia. Col. Curry entered the [illegible] four years ago as Captain of Company [illegible] Cavalry. During the year 1862 he was at Fort Walla Walla, during which time he was [illegible] of a number of detachments to compel [illegible] on the part of the Indians. In one of these [illegible] Ronde he characteristically entered the [illegible], about receiving their fire but fortunately [illegible], and killed both of the Indians. The [illegible] he was in command of a large force which [illegible] at Fort Hall, and scoured the country south [illegible]. In 1864 he was in command of an expedition which traveled nearly three thousand miles and [illegible] with the Indians. Upon his return [illegible] of Fort Walla Walla, and after the [illegible] of Col. Maury he commanded the Department [illegible] Columbia. In all the relations sustained by [illegible] marked by coolness, self possession and [illegible] he was ever the friend of the private soldier [illegible] too much to say the soldiers all believed in [illegible] B. Curry had been in active service at [illegible] would either have been numbered with the [illegible] would have been on his shoulders. We [illegible] in his return to civil life.

Thieves.—The "Jacobs brothers," who [illegible] the plains, and stole from their benefactor, [illegible] Plains, near this city, $1,200 [illegible] as follows: "Jos Jacobs—six feet one [illegible] built, very long legged, full chest, high [illegible], light forehead, hair in front rather thin, [illegible] behind, peculiar in gait—stepping apparently five or six inches farther than [illegible] and moustache dark brown and heavy, [illegible] slow and rather short. Had on when [illegible] pants, short sack coat, boots with [illegible] one top partly broken off, white straps [illegible] Colt's revolver, navy size, round barrel, [illegible] prepared for shooting without cap [illegible] a small white handled knife with four [illegible] black plush hat. Geo Jacobs—Probably [illegible] high, heavy built, straight [illegible] and moustache heavy and black, [illegible] cheek-bones, whiskers run up close to [illegible] under his eyes, forehead broad but [illegible] Jacobs', steps quick and rather like [illegible] has the appearance of drinking. He [illegible] dark pantaloons with pockets far [illegible] a large knife with black horn handle [illegible] broken off at point, with nick in the [illegible] had a watch with hunter's case [illegible] of hands, besides minute hand, [illegible] string for guard. It is believed that [illegible] above can read or write. The [illegible] took with them a brown and rather [illegible] hands high, with a few white [illegible] Deckleson will pay $300 for their [illegible]

[illegible] Court.—The Grand Jury lately attached to the Circuit Court three Chinese females charged with keep[illegible] [illegible] of ill fame. Two of the [illegible] yesterday—one [illegible] guilty, the [illegible]. In summing up the last case Prosecu[illegible] stated in reference to Chinese [illegible] that a Chinaman would testify just as the [illegible] warrant to favor the particular case [illegible] Mrs. Sam Sing, indicted as Hop Wa, was [illegible] to have been of the character designated, [illegible] the window of a disreputable den, at various [illegible] by competent testimony. But the [illegible] that she was a [illegible] ironing at a [illegible] and testimony being contradictory and probably [illegible] is much difficulty [illegible]. It is confidently believed that [illegible] hard by [illegible] of law in removing the nuisance will [illegible] to compile evidence for such [illegible] already commenced against the [illegible] has had the effect to cause a little [illegible] on their part for decency—last evening the [illegible] were nearly all so closely drawn [illegible] the "pretty" features of the courtesans [illegible] on the street.

[illegible]—The following from the Owyhee [illegible] shows that the [illegible] manufactured at [illegible] Works of this city, works admirably: [illegible] large additions to this establishment [illegible] gone to San Francisco for machinery [illegible] mill has been running up fully for [illegible] than ten tons per 24 hours. While [illegible] of Messrs. Moore & Fogus, it will, [illegible] mill—never get cold. An addition [illegible] made to the [illegible] tack, and the machinery [illegible] taken up and properly placed. It all [illegible] now. The machinery of this mill came [illegible] A. D. Gibbs & Co., Portland, Oregon [illegible] the machinery manufactured there.

[illegible] Coal.—The coal lately discovered [illegible] on Snake river, we are informed by [illegible] will be used at his ferry the coming win[illegible] of wood, which is a scarce article in [illegible] country. The steamboat now building in [illegible] for the Idaho trade, will be likely to make [illegible] quality of the article.

[illegible] Company E, Capt. McCown, First regi[illegible] try, arrived at Fort Vancouver on [illegible] Fort Colville, and were mustered out of [illegible]. The company were but fifteen [illegible]. After a march of twelve [illegible] the company embarked by steamboat [illegible] to Vancouver.

[illegible]—The new steamboat building in the upper [illegible] for Mr. Fisher has launched itself in [illegible] upon the rising water. The boat will be [illegible] as possible.

[illegible]—The Eva ledge at Owyhee is proving [illegible] it is developed. Specimens of a very [illegible] have lately been exhibited from there.

[illegible] boy in America likes peanuts, and [illegible] know where they come from. They [illegible] everybody's yard but they [illegible] Carolina, upon the sandy lands in the neigh[illegible] Cape Fear, they raise from fifty to seventy [illegible] to the acre. It is used in the preparation of medicines, [illegible] and is largely introduced as an adul[illegible]. Such and so varied and important are [illegible] this simple product is devoted.

Ladies' Clubs.—In Russia they have carried the club system far beyond what even they have done in England. There are clubs for ladies, and clubs for servants and [illegible] recently gave his master notice because he was not allowed to go to his club. Just now St. Petersburg is full of a very unpleasant piece of scandal about one of the ladies' clubs. At these institutions card playing is forbidden and so, for want of better employment, lotteries have come into fashion. At the one referred to a certain lady of rank had won over either by love or money the servant whose duty it was to ascertain the winning numbers in the lottery, and found them ahead. He placed himself behind the lady's chair, and always in [illegible] of the lucky numerals. But he overacted his part. His patroness always won and so the suspicions of the losers were excited, the treachery was discovered, and the noble lady was compelled to leave not only the club, but St. Petersburg.

A new thoroughly fire proof brick building belonging to Mr. F. P. [illegible] Gerald hardware merchant, has just been completed at the southeast corner of Main and Federal streets. Its dimensions are 78x29 feet outside measurement. It has 17 inch walls, is two stories of 14 and 12 feet and is laid up of hard burnt bricks in the most durable and workman like manner. Instead of the heavy, overhanging parapet wall and cornice which so frequently disfigures modern brick buildings, this has a slightly raised frieze, which is not only safer but much more tasty. It is the first brick building ever erected in the Dalles, and it is an evidence of the solid success which awaits the merchant in this city who confines himself to his legitimate business.

The following is related among the curious incidents of the recent Parliamentary elections in the mother country: Last month, one Mr. Reardon, a Connaughtman who keeps a provision shop in London stopped a night at Athlone, Ireland on his way to Galway made himself very friendly with the 'boys' in that borough, who were dissatisfied with their late member treated them all round to drink and talked politics between each tumbler of punch. He was waked up early in the morning and invited to go on the hustings to witness the nomination, heard the late member proposed for re-election, and two of his new acquaintances propose 'Patrick Reardon, Esq.' replied in a slashing manner to the rival candidate's feeble speech, received the greatest 'show of hands' and his opponent [illegible] ing retired in disgust, was duly declared member for the ancient borough of Athlone, as much to his own surprise as satisfaction.

In a compost pile nothing comes amiss that is, nothing that is offensive and in your way. Make that corner a golgotha for every worthless cat rat snake, piratical hawk or crow you can kill. Make them all serviceable—compost them. All feathers, heads, entrails of slaughtered fowls—pitch them over into that corner, or teach your people to do it. All offal from pigs, calves, lambs, or beeves, killed for market or home consumption, compost it all and cover with earth. If you find a worthless cur scratching out your buried treasure, shoot and compost him. A composted dog is worth two dollars, which is one dollar and ninety-nine cents more than most vagabond dogs are worth alive.

Worth Committing to Memory.—A bit of glue dissolved in skim milk and water will restore old crape. Half a cranberry bound on a corn will kill it. An inkstand was turned over upon a white cloth; a servant threw over it a mixture of salt and pepper plentifully. Picture frames and glasses are preserved from flies by painting them with a brush dipped in a mixture made by boiling three or four onions in a pint of water. Bed bugs are kept away by washing the crevices with strong salt water put on with a brush. A piece of blotting paper, crumpled together to make it firm, and just wetted, will take ink out of mahogany. Rub the spot hard with the wetted paper, when it instantly disappears, and the white mark from the operation may be instantly removed by rubbing it with a cloth.

First Families of Greece.—A suit has been commenced in Athens by Demosthenes of the Piræus, which contains a claim that some hundreds of years ago was mooted in an Athens Court of Justice, and has never yet been set at rest—namely, the right of the family to be considered the direct descendants of Demosthenes. There are in Greece and Asia Minor, and all over the world wherever Greeks reside, hundreds of persons of the name of Demosthenes, who may all claim the same pedigree.

The cultivation of beet sugar in certain Western States, it is confidently asserted, will supercede both sorghum and the old fashioned sugar cane. Wherever it is cultivated it yields better, is easier raised, and is superior for refining.

It is a great benefit to the public to have things called by their right names. For instance—the scientific name of the cattle murrain in England is 'pneumonia pocorum epizootica typhosa.'

Webster's New Dictionary contains 114,000 words. Few people, learned or unlearned, know or use over 20,000.

The following touching poem was picked up in a rebel camp in Georgia:

I laid four dollars on the board
 I bet them [illegible] by won;
The farrer dealer got my checks,
 Till I at last had none.

Let every gay young gambolee[illegible]
 Of cut-throat games beware
And only play with gentlemen who spread upon the square.

Speech of John A. Bingham.

At Cadiz, Ohio, recently, the Union men in that section of the country were addressed by General Schenck and John A. Bingham. The following is an extract from Bingham's speech:

WHAT JEFFERSON TAUGHT

Neither will any intelligent American be deceived by the clap trap of the Democratic platform that they adopt the resolutions of 1798, as interpreted by Jefferson "in his solemn official inaugural in 1801." Pray what interpretation did Jefferson, "in his solemn inaugural of 1801," give to the resolutions of 1798? None whatever; but on the contrary, flatly declared in opposition to any such resistance by States of the authority and acts of the Government. In that memorable address, Jefferson enjoined "absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority—the vital principle of republics—from which there lies no appeal but to force—the vital principle and immediate parent of despotism." Those are his words; consider them. The Union party declares with Jefferson that "the absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority is the vital principle of the republic." The Democratic party of Ohio declares that the true theory of the resolutions of '98—the right of any State to resist the decision of the majority, at pleasure, the minority being the judges when the majority's decision shall be acquiesced in, and when it shall be disproved. No more false renderings, gentlemen Democrats, if you follow Jefferson "in his solemn inaugural." Remember, if you please, in that great paper Jefferson declares for "equal and exact justice to all men" as in a more solemn state paper, the immortal declaration, he declared that "all men are created equal, and therefore endowed by their Creator with equal inalienable rights." With these grand and deathless utterances of Jefferson blazing in letters of living light before you, you are to resolve in favor of the right of the minority, acting as States, to resist the will of the majority, acting as the American nationality—and also to resolve in favor of the right of the minority, acting in a State, to rob, outrage and chattelize the majority of the natural born citizens of the State, as in South Carolina—in other words, you resolve that this is a Government made by white men, and, therefore, the 250,000 white men of South Carolina, according to the "true doctrine," have the right to enslave the 400,000 black men born within that State, and therefore citizens of the United States! Is that "the equal and exact justice to all men" for which Jefferson declared in that "solemn inaugural of 1801"—the right of the minority to convert a large majority of their fellow citizens into chattels—the Democratic right to make a man a slave—a thing of trade, with no acknowledged rights in the present, with no hope of a heritage in the great hereafter, doomed by Democratic rule to live without knowledge, and toil without reward, until to his benighted soul the universe becomes faceless, and God himself silent and unknown! That, you say, "is equal and exact justice to all men."

THE QUESTION OF COLOR.

Yet these Ohio Democrats answer that it is "the true doctrine according to the resolutions of 1798, as interpreted by Jefferson in his official inaugural of 1801." Jefferson, according to these gentlemen, meant, of course, "equal justice to all white men," and by the great declaration he meant to say that "all white men are created equal, and endowed by their Creator with the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." What a pity that the Ohio Democratic Convention had not, in 1776 and 1801, been present to tell Jefferson how to say what he meant. Shade of Jefferson! only white men are endowed by their Creator with the right to live. Now, Mr. Ohio Democratic interpretation of the "true doctrine of State rights," be pleased to tell us how white a man has to be before he has the right to live on the earth, and to look up to that bright heaven which bends above us like the arms of beneficence, clasping in its embrace the evil and the good, the just and the unjust. Must a man to be entitled to the right of life, be as white as alabaster, or only as white as the late rebel Secretary of State, Judah P. Benjamin, who was a Turk—the color of mahogany. That these supporters and advocates of a shattered and expiring rebellion mean that only white men, in this country at least, have the right to their atrocious utterances, that "the Government was made by white men and that white labor should be protected against negro labor by a legislative prohibition of negro emigration into Ohio."

The Government made by white men! This, like their cry of "plain and palpable violations of the Constitution," these gentlemen borrow from the late State of South Carolina. The word "white" is not to be found either in the Articles of Confederation of the United States, nor in the Constitution of the United States. The reason is obvious, that in the original thirteen States free colored men were expressly recognized as "free citizens," and in many of them exercised the elective franchise, both at the time of the first Union under the Confederation, and the formation of the "more perfect Union" under the Constitution.

So the negroes had a voice in making the Constitution of the United States as well as white men; and, from that hour to this, every free negro, born and residing within the United States, is, in common with every white person so born and domiciled within the United States, in the words of the Constitution, "a natural born citizen of the United States."

But, say these Democrats, the negro must be excluded, "in order that white labor may be protected against negro labor." The men who propose this are the men who but a few years ago assisted to elect to the Presidency James Buchanan, who proposed to reduce the standard of prices in this country to the standard prices in Europe, that is to say, to the prices paid for labor in the oppressed and plundered Spain and Portugal, France and Austria, and Russia, where men are compelled to work for ten cents a day or starve. Who does not know that the great want of the United States is productive labor, whether black or white. The United States embraces thousands of miles of territory as fertile as any which the sun, in his course through the heavens looks down upon, without the productive power to break it up and scatter upon it the seed, and reap from it the mighty harvest which would pay her debt and supply the world with bread. Consider her immense deposits of iron and coal, lead and copper, silver and gold, which await the creative power of honest toil to make them contribute to the wants and interests of the country. Let labor in this land be unfettered and protected by just and wise laws, let it go out to the world that America secures to all its own citizens, and to all honest and intelligent laborers who immigrate to these shores, "a fair day's wages for a fair day's work" and there need be no fear of any want of means in this country to meet the enormous obligation contracted in the war for the Union, and discharge it as a like obligation never was discharged before—or any want of the means of personal support and independence among the toiling masses. Instead of favoring a policy like this, the Democratic party proposes to begin the work of secession next was begun before, to secure to one section of the Union the unpaid labor of the black citizens of the republic. Do you forget that more than one hundred thousand of these black citizens have, in this great war for the Union, followed the flag as citizen soldiers? and do you propose that not one of these black heroes, maimed in the fight at Fort Wagner, or Port Hudson or Petersburg, shall be permitted to immigrate to Ohio lest white labor might suffer?

THE STATUS OF REBEL STATES.

It is further resolved by this party "that the so called seceded States are in the Union as States and are, therefore, entitled to all the reserved rights of the States and to their due representation in Congress, and to vote for President and Vice President, and any attempt of the General Government or any Department thereof to deprive them of those rights would be an assault upon the rights of every State in the Union, and an effort to overthrow the Government ordained by the Constitution."

My fellow citizens, here is a proposition so absurd that you will naturally inquire upon what grounds the Democratic party attempt to justify it? I answer you that the only ground, in this Democratic platform for this monstrous proposition is the sentiment that the ordinances of secession are void. The method adopted by the Ohio Democracy is a very good method by which to rob the victorious Government of the United States of the right which, by the American laws of war and the general judgment of mankind, belongs to every victorious nationality, to dictate terms to the conquered. It is, in my judgment, a devilish device to give the rebels the precious fruits of the hard earned victory of the Government. If they are "in the Union as States" and entitled to all the reserved rights of the States it is very clear that they have the right to send to the incoming Congress Representatives and Senators. Virginia may send Mason and Hunter to the Senate, South Carolina Hampton and Beauregard, and so on through all the rebel region, and if the House and Senate object, the representatives having the qualifications prescribed as to age and citizenship and residence, then the Congress are to be denounced as guilty of an assault upon every State and an effort to overthrow the Constitution. Admit the proposition that the so called seceded States are and have been during the rebellion in the Union as States and the Constitutional Amendment prohibiting slavery throughout the United States, although it receives the ratification, as it surely will, of every free State save New Jersey, although two slave States, Maryland and Missouri have ratified it, yet it fails, for want of the assent of three fourths of the States in the Union.

If the amendment be thus defeated then their party with their resolve of 1862, declaring that emancipation, either by Congressional action or Executive proclamation is unconstitutional, and thus it results that no slave is liberated within these rebel States, and the tens of thousands of the black soldiers of the Union who defended your flag, will be returned to slavery and sold like cattle in the market. Great God! the American people make merchandise of their defenders, that the very traitors who struck at the nation's life, and against whom the liberated slaves rose in arms, may be restored to power, only to repeat their treason and make it a complete success.

Another result which follows the adoption by the people of this proposition is, that these rebel States may assume, as States, the payment of their own debt, contracted in the hellish work of rebellion, and thereby appropriate the resources of their rebel aristocracy, every dollar of which should of right be applied to pay the debt of the Union.

Another result of the proposition is, that the Federal Government will not, by the imposition of taxes, or otherwise be able to impose upon the rebel population of South Carolina, to pay for the suppression of their rebellion, any larger burden than upon a like number of the loyal and patriotic population of Ohio.

If these rebel districts are still "in the Union as States," with all their reserved rights, it further results that President Johnson is guilty of usurpation in appointing, as he has done, Provisional Governors for them, and prescribing the rules of their official action.

And, finally, if the "so called seceded States" are still in the Union, as States, because their ordinances were void, it follows that if every State of the Union had followed the example of South Carolina, recalled their representatives from Congress, banished every Federal officer from their limits, captured and held every Federal fort, Custom house and Post Office, and appropriated to their own use all Federal revenues, and withheld all supplies from the Federal Government, and entered into a new Confederation, and hunted down the United States officers, wherever found—they would all have been "in the Union as States." Plain, honest men will never assent to any such absurd conclusion; neither will they believe that, within the territorial limits of any State of this Union, there is or can be any State of the Union with all the reserved rights of a State, after all its people have voluntarily levied war upon the United States, repudiated its authority, and entered, in violation of the express letter of the Constitution into "allegiance and confederation" with other States.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE DEMOCRATS.

If these rebel States are in the Union as States, I respectfully inquire what is the sense of the resolve of the Democracy to stand by President Johnson in all constitutional efforts to restore the States to the exercise of their rights and powers within the Union. What can President Johnson do to restore Ohio, now in the Union as a State, to the exercise of her rights and power? No President can constitutionally restore States in the Union as States to the exercise of their rights and power. The people, and the people only, of States in the Union as States, can exercise their rights as such; if they will not exercise their rights as States no other can do that for them, nor restore them to the exercise of them. I repeat, again, the people of the United States have the right to say when these rebels may again exercise the rights and powers of States in the Union, and, in my judgment, should see that they are so restored except upon conditions of security for the future, if not upon indemnity for the past.

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.

After all this solemn averment of the reserved rights of the seceded States as States in the Union, the Democracy declare their unequivocal opposition to negro suffrage, and to the political equality of black and white men. Massachusetts confers suffrage upon negro citizens. What right has the Democracy of Ohio to complain of it or denounce it? Is it not one of the reserved rights of the States in the Union to regulate suffrage among its own citizens, being also citizens of the United States? I am free to say, as I have always said, that the power to regulate suffrage is exclusively with the several States, and, until the Constitution is amended, it is clear that Congress cannot control the States in the exercise of this power. Neither can any one State control or rightfully interfere with it in another. In view of all that has occurred, I believe it would be to the advantage of the people to so amend their Constitution as to require that suffrage should be restricted in every State (as it is not now) to citizens of the United States—native and naturalized—and that representation should be apportioned among the several States, according to the whole number of duly qualified electors in each.

TAXING UNITED STATES BONDS.

But to complete this manual of State rights and Ohio Democracy, it is further declared that the party "explicitly condemns the policy of the party in power, in creating thousands of millions of Government stocks, and attempting to exonerate the holders thereof from all obligations to pay their just proportion of State taxes, thereby creating an odious moneyed aristocracy," and demand that the money so invested be taxed for Federal, State and municipal purposes.

It needed no such resolves last August to notify the world that the Ohio Democracy explicitly condemned the party in power for creating thousands of millions of Government debt to enable that Government to crush the rebellion. The Ohio Democracy opposed all the world, by their hostility to the party of the Union, and to their policy when in 1862, they supported Vallandigham, whose boast it was that he never had and never would vote a dollar, as a Representative in Congress, to carry on the war. How comes it that there is no word of explicit or even implied condemnation in this long Democratic platform of the unmatched treason which made this debt a necessity? They can resolve that the South Carolina traitors are in the Union as a State, and may exercise, as traitors, duly organized, the renewed power of a State but the widowed mother who gave her sons to battle and loaned her money to the Government to put down the treason of South Carolina is an aristocrat and should be taxed upon her bonds to relieve these Southern traitors from the burden of paying for suppressing their treason! "Yes," say these gentlemen, "the bonds should be taxed for State and municipal purposes." This is, I suppose, more of the "true doctrine of State rights"—that the several State and municipal corporations may violate the express law of the United States, made in accordance with the express letter of the Constitution, and tax the bonds of the Government for the purpose of paying South Carolina traitors for condescending to exercise their renewed powers as a State in Congress! What is the credit of this Government worth if its plighted faith is thus to be trifled with and broken? What more effective method to utterly destroy the Government than this can be adopted?

STATE OFFICERS.

Neither will a free people ever consent to that other demand of this party, that their taxes shall be collected by irresponsible State officers. The officers of the several States of this Union as such, are not bound and cannot be held to perform official duty to the Federal Government. Neither are they responsible by bond or otherwise, to the Government for their official acts.

HABEAS CORPUS SUSPENSION.

That this Democratic platform may be wanting in nothing essential to the success of their great conspiracy against the Government it denounces the suspension by the Government of the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus, and the denial of the right of trial by jury, and the arrest by military authority and trial by military Commission of spies, conspirators and assassins acting in the interest of armed rebellion, as "palpable infractions of our Constitution and outrages on private rights." Who can fail to see in this parade of words a plea for the chief of the rebellion, as he was the chief of the Southern Democracy, Jefferson Davis? This resolution avers that the right to the privilege of the writ is unjustly denied him, that he has been unlawfully arrested by Military authority, and that if tried by a military tribunal of justice it will be a palpable infraction of the Constitution and of private rights. Thus believing, or affecting to believe, our Democracy resolve that the right to the habeas corpus and trial by jury, which Jefferson Davis and all other traitor citizens "not in the military service of the United States," they will maintain and defend in every extremity. But the truth is that the American people have conquered Jefferson Davis and his co-conspirators, and [illegible] another people who conquered [illegible] are not bound to extend to the conquered either the habeas corpus or the trial by jury.

Hundreds of thousands of our citizens [illegible] have been brutally murdered by this man Davis and his confederates, imprisoned, [illegible] beaten, [illegible] denied raiment, robbed, [illegible] poisoned, driven mad by oppression and murdered by the slow torture of famine and [illegible] the Democracy have no resolve against the hands which dared thus to outrage the public liberty and private rights of the defenders of the republic.

MURDER OF THE [illegible]

Those armed conspirators hired their assassins to hunt down and mercilessly murder our [illegible] and faithful President in [illegible] but of this outrage there is no Democratic denunciation, nor is there any recognition of [illegible] service. The attempt to murder [illegible] the [illegible] Minister, and his faithful [illegible] ters, with reproach and infamy as violators of the Constitution and aggressors [illegible] It requires no argument to [illegible] that a Government [illegible] apologizing for its enemies and denouncing and murdering its faithful officers and defenders.

THE ISSUE.

I have said more than enough, my fellow citizens, to satisfy you that the question of to-day, as I declared in the outset, is whether the care of the States and Government of this Union is to be committed to those who conspired for their subversion, or to those who crushed the conspiracy and restored the supremacy of the Constitution. The dread issue is with the people [illegible] for them to-day, by the sovereignty of the ballot as it was but yesterday for them by the power of the bayonet—to decide whether the republic shall live or perish. You decide this issue not for yourselves alone, but for the struggling sons of liberty in every land, and for the millions of the hereafter.

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
